

LODGE ATTACKS ACTS OF DEMOCRATIC HOUSE

SENATOR MAKES BITTER ARRANGEMENT OF DEMOCRATS IN SPEECH AT COLUMBUS, OHIO TODAY.

SHOW FALSE ECONOMY

So-Called "Economy," He Declared, Expended More Than Government, And Funds Were Wasted Where Votes Might Be Secured.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 21.—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge opened the republican campaign in Ohio today with an unqualified defense of the administration and a plea for the re-election of President Taft. He described the democratic party as having abandoned the fundamental principle which it once supported and said that its platform looked on its face like a "perfectly vague and incoherent aggregation of sentences, a mass of language intended to get votes."

The return to power of that party was pictured as the forerunner of commercial disaster providing its present attitude on the tariff was maintained. Senator Lodge did not mention the progressive party or Colonel Roosevelt by name, but by implication he opposed the policy of the recall of judges and devoted a third of his time to what he said was a proposition to tear down the constitution of the United States "to convert it into statute changeable by the whim of the moment."

Columbus, O., Sept. 21.—Senator Lodge, after declaring his pleasure in addressing an Ohio gathering, told of his long intimate friendship with President McKinley. His speech was largely devoted to a review of the acts of the late Congress.

"The Democratic House," he said, "determined to enter upon a career of legislation and in order to secure their legislation they adopted to an extent never known in our history that most vicious practice of attaching legislation to appropriation bills, which hitherto the rules of both houses have been carefully framed to prevent."

Democratic Economies.

They started out with the proposition that they were going to make great economies but when the final account was made up it was found that the 'economies' all crippled those 'branches of the government' where there were no votes and the extravagances in which they freely indulged were poured out lavishly where it was thought that large sums from the treasury would result in securing support at the polls. The economies and extravagances alike were determined not by the interests of the government or the people but in every case by the hope of votes."

The speaker asserted that the actions of the democratic legislators had crippled the State Department to effect a saving of $90,000; that they selected this year, when Mexico is in a fever of revolution to cut off five cavalry regiments from the army; that their economy had caused this country to drop from second to third place among the navies of the world with the Panama Canal on the point of being opened and that their Civil Service legislation threatened the disorganization of the tariff measures.

Regarding tariff measures, vetoed by President Taft, who criticized by Senator Lodge, who continued:

"But during the last few years another question, or rather a series of questions, have arisen, which far transcend all others, because they involve the fundamental principles upon which our government and our institutions rests. These questions have been raised and agitated and advocated by men of all parties. The agitation has divided the nation into two great camps, whether the division has been openly declared or not. These questions are far greater than any possible question of economies or administration. If the proposed constitutional changes should be carried into effect they would completely revolutionize our system and theory of government as we have known it since the beginning of our history."

WORLD SANITATION CONGRESS OPENS IN WASHINGTON MONDAY

More Than Three Thousand Experts in Hygiene, Representing Every Country to Attend.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—More than three thousand of the world's most noted experts in hygiene and sanitation are gathered in this city at present, waiting to attend the Fifteenth International Congress of Hygiene and Demography, which is to open here on Monday and will remain in session through the entire week. This will be the first time that the Congress meets upon American soil and there is every indication that the gathering next week will surpass all its predecessors in attendance and general importance. This year's congress is held under the auspices of the United States Government and President Taft is scheduled formally to open the Congress of which he is the honorary president.

Every country of Europe, practically every civilized country of the United States and Canada and the South and Central American republics are represented by delegates and many of the principal countries are also represented in the exhibition of hygiene and demography which was opened a week ago and will continue for two more weeks to supplement the congress. The delegates assembled here include experts representing every state of the Union, more than one hundred municipalities, scores of organizations active in matters of hygiene and sanitation and nearly every prominent university and college in the United States and Canada, as well as many scientific bodies.

Dr. Henry P. Walcott, chairman of the State Board of Health of Massachusetts, will be the presiding officer at the sessions of the congress, while the exhibition is under the control of Dr. Joseph W. Schereschewsky, of the United States public health and marine hospital service. The congress will be divided into nine sections, each of which will have its own program. The exhibition is held in a number specially constructed buildings in Potomac Park and is attracting great interest.

The general subject of hygiene in all its subdivisions will be discussed at the sessions of the congress next week by experts from all parts of the civilized globe. Among the subjects of practical interest to be discussed are "Sewage Disposal by Dilution with Reference to Conditions in Water Purification in Europe by Biological Methods;" "Disposal of Waste;" "The Campaign Against Noise;" "Hygiene of City Babies;" "Sanitary Aspects of Housing Problems;" "Sewage Purification in Cleveland;" "The Campaign Against Noise;" "Hygiene of Early Infancy;" "Importance of Flies and other Insects as Carriers of Infectious Diseases;" "Prevention of Water-Borne Diseases;" "Prevention of Health;" "Transportation and Urban Health;" "The Model Law for Municipalities;" "Air Pollution;" "Hygiene to Street Traffic;" "State and Municipal Hygiene;" "The Sanitary Aspect of Public Water Supplies;" "City Planning;" "Rural Betterment;" "State Insurance in Relation to Public Health" and scores of other problems of an economic and hygienic nature.

One whole section of the congress will be devoted to "State and Municipal Hygiene and Sanitation" and have been arranged for the discussion of public health organization and administration in England, Germany, Denmark, Japan and other countries. One of the most interesting papers will be one by Colonel W. C. Corgan, chief sanitary officer of the Indian Canal commission, on "Administrative Methods and Results Obtained in the Canal Zone."

In addition to these and other general subjects there will be discussions of a number of specific subjects, like infantile paralysis, hookworm disease, tuberculosis, bubonic plague and other important subjects, by some of the greatest authorities and experts on these subjects in the world. It is believed that these hygienic congresses will lead to the greater and more far-reaching results than its predecessors.

This congress was called into being in 1852 to meet the problems connected with the great cholera epidemic in Europe for eight years. Since then tremendous progress in general sanitation and in the control of certain diseases like cholera and other endemic and infectious diseases, including diphtheria, tuberculosis, malaria, typhoid and hydrophobia, has been made as a result of the work of the international congresses on hygiene and demography. The gathering was held in Berlin in September, 1907.

ROOSEVELT DEFENDS PROGRESSIVE BOLT

Terms Regulars' Control Case of Tail Wagging the Dog—Will Rest Tomorrow in Kansas.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 21.—"The tail? It was irregular for the dog to wag in," said Colonel Roosevelt today regarding the statement that the progressives had bolted the republican party.

"In Nebraska for instance at the primaries last spring Mr. Taft polled about one sixth of the republican votes, yet our opponents called themselves regular and they called the 83 to 84 per cent of the voters bolters."

Colonel Roosevelt came into Kansas to remain there for two days. He will rest tomorrow either in Topeka or with William Allen White in Emporia and in the evening a special train will be waiting for him but the secretary did not know where the special train was going.

Colonel Roosevelt said he had received reports of political conditions from the east which were encouraging to him. "I'm happy to say that the east is doing its best to catch up with the west. We're going to give the Atlantic coast in November along the Atlantic coast in November."

Expresses Satisfaction in Welcome Tendered Him on Campaign Tour—Arrives At Seagirt.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 20.—Woodrow Wilson traveled homeward today from his first real campaign trip since he was nominated for the presidency. In the last five days he visited Iowa, South Dakota, Minnesota, Michigan and Ohio.

"It is hard to view the trip objectively," said the governor when asked about it today. "What interested me most was the friendliness of the people toward me. I observed especially that the plainest fellows were the most cordial. They seemed to feel there was no officialness and that I was accessible to them all."

"With reference to his reception in Columbus, O., in connection with the opening of the campaign in Ohio, the governor said: 'It was most extraordinary. It reminded me of a Jersey outpouring and I felt thoroughly at home.' The governor was scheduled to reach Seagirt, N. J., at 2:30 today."

NO NEWS RECEIVED FROM REAR ADMIRAL SUTHERLAND'S PARTY

Believed More Than Equipped to Meet With Any Rebel Force It Might Encounter on March.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Sept. 21.—Early dispatches to the state department today contained no news of Rear Admiral Sutherland and his marines who were believed to have fought a battle with the revolutionists who sought to delay their march to the relief of Granada. Officials were puzzled by the difficulties of communication. No news of the United States force, which was more than equipped to deal with any rebel force it might meet.

The lack of news was partially explained by the fact that Admiral Sutherland must be many miles from Managua, his base with no means of sending messages except by courier. The relief of Granada with its foreign inhabitants, officials say, was imperative if other foreign governments were not to take a hand in protecting their subjects. Definite advices from Admiral Sutherland are anxiously awaited.

It was believed today that for additional force Rear Admiral Sutherland had been obliged to go far north to Leon, where there is a garrison of bluejackets and marines. It is thought he may have found necessary more artillery than the two 3-inch guns which he had with him. The only recourse would be to dismount some of the smaller calibre guns on the gunboat Annapolis at Corinto.

A telegram from American Minister Weitzel, received two days in transmission, relayed at the state department today, confirms reports of the Nicaraguan revolutionists again using large steamers and bombarding San Jorge and other towns on Lake Nicaragua, in the neighborhood of Rivas. It was further reported that an attack on Rivas from the north by Zeledon's column had been completely repulsed by the federals with considerable losses to both sides.

He will then be at his office regularly until he starts his campaign in this state probably the following week. His itinerary will not be announced until later.

NEW VENTILATING SYSTEM FOR MANITOWOC SCHOOLS.

It's not because a stove is worn out that causes it to be listed for sale in the classified columns. Many of them have been used but little; so many people move from one place to another; the old stove is too big for the new home or too small, or they now live in house with furnace, or perhaps the owners are leaving the city; all of these things serve to place practically new stoves on the market at less than half price.

If you are in the market for a stove spend a few moments each day reading the "For Sale" ads and if you can't find exactly what you wish run a small ad yourself describing the kind of stove you would buy and you can hardly fail to reach some one with the identical kind for sale.

Eastern States Especially Will Play Important Part—Roosevelt Special to Middle West.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—New York Republicans will gather at Saratoga Wednesday to select candidates for governor and other State officers to be voted for in November. The third party men will have no standing in the primary, but will be obliged to nominate by petition. United States Senator Frank O. Briggs is opposed for another term by the Republican side. Several are engaged in a spirited contest for the democratic nomination. The election of State senators is attracting attention, since upon the new State senate will depend the choice of a Republican or Democratic governor to fill out the unexpired year of Governor Wilson's term in the event of his election to the presidency.

Republicans and Democrats of Massachusetts will name complete State tickets in the primaries Tuesday. The Progressives, as a party, will take no part in the primaries. Three men pelted a strike breaker and one arrested followed. Car service was poor and many complaints were heard on the street corners. At 7:35 last night not a car could be seen on Main street. Some cars ran without head lights while others took sudden turns up avenues not marked on their sign boards. Service was so bad that walking clubs again sprang into favor. A slight better service is in force today. Herbert Warren, general manager of the street car company, reiterated his position regarding the strikers. He holds out no hope of arbitration, nor does the old employees show any desire to return to work under old conditions.

THREE RACES DELAYED TWO WEEKS, ACCORDING TO ACTION TAKEN THIS AFTERNOON.

BAD WEATHER CAUSE

Condition of Track Following Heavy Rains Would Make Race Before New Date Most Perilous to Drivers.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Milwaukee, Sept. 21.—The Vanderbilt cup races, comprising three days' events, were postponed today for two weeks.

The Vanderbilt cup race will be held on Wednesday, October 2, according to the new schedule. The Wisconsin challenge and Pabst trophy races will be held Thursday, Oct. 3, and the Grand Prix on Saturday, Oct. 5.

This decision was arrived at a meeting of the Milwaukee Automobile Association and of the officers of the A. A. A. this afternoon.

Agreement was reached to the effect that the expenses of the drivers during the period of postponement would be stood by the local association which promoted the races.

The condition of the course following the heavy rains is such that the holding of the races previous to the time now announced would be exceedingly perilous to the drivers, and would be practically impossible.

SITUATION IN UTAH CONTINUES SERIOUS

Bingham, Utah, Sept. 21.—Rumors that a large army of strike-breakers was being recruited in nearby towns to take the place of the foreigners who laid down their tools Wednesday, has aroused the Greeks and Cretons to action and today they were taking up positions in their fortification overlooking the mines. There was no disorder, however.

The report that the Utah Copper Mine company would begin operations last night proved untrue. In case an attempt is made to open the mines today a battle with the Greeks and Cretons is expected. The Utah Copper company imported twenty white and Japanese laborers into camp yesterday and their arrival was witnessed by the strikers, but they did not attempt to interfere with them.

Since Governor Spry's visit to the strikers several days ago there has been but little disorder. Last night he again cautioned the miners that he would not allow the lives of citizens to be endangered, and that he would use the power of the state if necessary to enforce the law.

NEED MORE CAPITAL TO BUILD TROLLEY
Resumption of Work on Line Between Madison and Portage Dependent on Promoter's Success.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Sept. 21.—Whether or not the Chicago and Wisconsin Valley Railway Company will resume the work on its projected interurban line between Madison and Portage, will depend on the success of its promoters in interesting new capital in the venture. A letter received by City Attorney William Ryan from J. E. Jones of Portage, who acted as manager for the company, indicates that the project is now at a standstill pending such aid. The company planned to build an interurban between Madison and Portage, a line from Madison to Sauk City, another line around Lake Monona and eventually to extend the system to other points north and south in central Wisconsin. A local street car system was built in Portage last summer and a mile or more of track laid in the City of Madison when the work ceased. Recently a resolution was introduced in the city council directing the city attorney to begin the proceedings to restrain the company from tearing up any more of the streets of the city in view of the fact that it had not complied with the provisions of its franchise which was about to expire. The resolution was not adopted but referred to the street committee and in the meantime the city attorney has been in correspondence with Manager Jones, who has written that his company was awaiting the developments in negotiating with eastern financial interests and that it would not disturb the street of Madison without first consulting with the city authorities.

I feel well all night and though 59 years old, can now do the work of a man of 35 years. I would like to be the means of others getting benefit from Foley Kidney Pills."—Badger

Is Peruna a Laxative?
I am in receipt of a letter from a mechanic who is at the head of a prosperous household. Peruna has been used in his family for a good many years. He writes as follows:
"As you know, we have used Peruna in our home for a number of years. We find it a reliable household medicine."
S. E. HARTMAN, M. D. cline in catarrhal conditions, coughs, colds and grip, and many other ailments to which the family is subject. But since the change in the formula of Peruna I do not find it quite as useful to myself. My bowels are naturally very active. I cannot take a cathartic of any sort. It does me injury to do so. The old Peruna contained no cathartic ingredient and was therefore a very useful medicine to me. But I notice that the new Peruna has a slight laxative action, which almost makes it prohibitory for me to use. I was wondering if there was not some way in which I could obtain the old Peruna as you used to make it."

To this letter I made the following reply: "Yes, the new Peruna does contain a laxative element. You should therefore take the old Peruna (KATARNO) which has no laxative quality. While prescribing the old Peruna I found it quite necessary frequently to prescribe the laxative Manalin in connection with it. Therefore Manalin was combined with Peruna, in order to meet those cases that require a laxative. But in case no laxative is required the objection to the new Peruna you speak of arise. Many of the people who used to take the old Peruna found difficulty in taking the new Peruna. To meet those cases I am having manufactured the old Peruna under the name of KATARNO, and if you are anxious to get the old Peruna exactly as it used to be made, you can do so. Peruna is for sale at all drug stores."
SPECIAL NOTICE—Many persons are making inquiries for the old-time Peruna. To such would say, this formula is now put out under the name of KATARNO, manufactured by KATARNO COMPANY, Columbus, Ohio. Write them and they will be pleased to send you a free booklet.

Royal Theater is an outgrowth of the "nickel-show." Instead of showing the regular film releases it shows only the big feature releases, and caters by this means to the most critical. Pelts Paid for Theft.

Property Owners
know the value of the term "All Conveniences" when they are offering houses for sale or to be let. Prospective purchasers, or tenants, immediately think of Gas and running water when they hear or see "All Conveniences"
If there are any property owners whose houses are not now piped for Gas it will pay them to have it done at once. The cost is small and the return in increased rentals, or purchase price, very soon pays for it. It makes it much easier to dispose of the property, because Gas is daily coming more and more into demand for lighting, cooking and other household uses.
We are making very liberal offers today for house-piping. Let us figure on your house, if it is not already equipped for Gas. Terms can be arranged to allow you one year to pay for it. Our representative will call when and where you say.

On and after October 12 for fifteen days the thoroughbreds will have a fine opportunity to earn their oats at Porter, Ind., according to reports from that town. One hundred thousand dollars is being spent on the new race course in that town, and purses totaling $3,000 each day will be given to the winners. The lower purses for a selling race will be $400 and most of them will be of $500 value each. Some of the best stables that have ever been raced over the Canadian and Kentucky tracks undoubtedly will ship to Porter, as the owners will be guaranteed all shipping expenses.

Manager Frank Chance of the Chicago National league team, who has been suffering for more than a year with violent headache doesn't seem to get much better. He was operated on in New York a few days ago for a blood clot at the base of the brain. It is hoped this operation will result in a permanent cure but it is too early now to tell what its effect will be.

Trainer Mike Murphy of the University of Pennsylvania has also been ill for a long time. He is out for daily light exercise, but has given up all hope of returning to Philadelphia to work with the football team this fall. He hopes to regain his health in time to take charge of the track team next spring.

Big Jeff Tesreau, who is about the biggest thing in connection with the New York Giants this season, once wore a Detroit Tiger uniform for an entire afternoon. Detroit got him out west, paid his fare on his first trip east of the Mississippi and his mammoth build gave promise of bolstering up the Tigers' hurling corps. Tesreau made a great showing for himself.

BASEBALL NOTES.

Pitcher Bedient of the Boston Red Sox has won 15 of the 22 games he has pitched. Pretty classy work for a youngster.

In their last four games at Philadelphia the Pittsburgh Pirates made 24 runs, 62 hits and only one error in 150 chances.

Marvin Miller, the Boston Braves' new shortstop, looks like a genuine find. His playing has made a big hit with the Hub fans.

Larry Cheney is pitching fine ball for the Cubs and looks to be the West Siders' hope in the Chicago championship series.

Manager Clark Griffith proposes to fix up a little bonus for his Washington players for the good work they have done this season.

President Gaffney of the Boston Nationals has put a taboo on all exhibition games. Wonder what town it was that wanted to see the Braves.

Manager Eddie McLean of the Brooklyn, New England League team, has quit the game for good and taken a position as traveling salesman for a shoe concern.

After leading the International league for some time during the present season, the Jersey City team has dropped down among the coal bins and gas meters.

Hal Chase has had a poor season in slick work. The Highlanders star has been unable to break into the 300 circle, but is still there with the fancy stuff at first base.

Pitcher Laddie Cicotte, of the White Sox, has won from Philadelphia, Washington, New York, Detroit and Cleveland, but has not been able to do down his pals, the Red Sox.

The Cleveland Naps have been playing like a house afire of late. It's the same old story. After some time has cinched the pennant each season, the Naps end in and play their heads that day and Hughie Jennings was elated. That night, however, Detroit had to give him up, for a telegram arrived saying that another club owned big Tesreau. Later the Giants picked him up.

It remained for Nap Lajoie greatest of the great in the baseball world, to make the biggest error of the season. It happened at Cleveland the other day when the Philadelphia Athletics were playing the Sixth City team. It was in the seventh inning, Athletics at bat, two out and three on bases. Maggett grounded to Lajoie. It looked like an easy infielding chance, but the King fumbled the ball. Barry chasing in from third, Larry, thoroughly disgusted, tossed wildly to Mitchell, who was about to re-enter the pitchers' box. The ball rolled off the diamond and Plank came fearing across the plate. Murphy, who was originally on first, and Maggett both moving up a notch. Cleveland was then all up in the air, and a few more runs were scored, making seven in all after Lajoie's error. The big Frenchman seldom makes errors, but when he does, the fumble usually costs the game or at least a run. It was expensive in the game of which we speak.

Sheriff Harburger of New York city is quite excited over the fight game. He's for it strong. After witnessing 30 rounds at Madison Square Garden recently, he let go of this: "If in the army and navy the same rules as enforced here prevailed they would be a benefit to both arms of the service. If there are any ministers still in doubt as to the real intent of the law permitting boxing bouts, I shall be glad to take them to one of these shows and allow them to judge for themselves."

heads off.

According to past performances, Jeff Tesreau, of the Giants, is only running to form these days. Last year he won an in-and-out until half the Eastern league race had been run, and then he came to the front with full speed on.

A New York scribe dopes the ten biggest baseball disappointments of the year as follows: "Team: Cardinals, Browns, Naps, Athletics, Phillies. Players: Marty O'Toole, Joe Willis, George Chalmers, Dol Gahr, Chief Bender.

John T. Brush, owner of the Giants, figured in an auto collision recently. His car was struck by an auto truck and the name of the driver of the truck was Joseph Wood. Looks like a hunch that "Smoky Joe" Wood will bump the Giants in the world series.

With the Soxers.

Western critics have picked Freddie Burns, of Indianapolis, as the coming champion in the welterweight division.

Al. Paltzer is still on the outs with Manager Tom O'Rourke and will retire to his farm until his contract with O'Rourke has expired.

K. O. Brown, of New York has posted a forfeit of $200 with the Cleveland A. C. to guarantee his appearance Sept. 27, to box Sammy Troit, of Columbus.

MURPHY WANTS MORE LIFE IN BALL GAMES

Charles Murphy.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—President Charles Murphy of the Cubs has become a radical advocate of the strenuous life for ball players. He's there with two propositions which he thinks would help the game, make it more interesting and hurry it along.

As a starter he'd abolish the practice of visiting players visiting with home players when they meet on the diamond. Then he would have the players run to their positions instead of loafing.

"Here is what happens," says the Cub president. "The Boston fellows or the Giants or the Phillies—it doesn't make any difference whom you select—come to the West Side. 'About the first thing that you see is a West Side player and a visiting player over on the side lines shaking hands and visiting.

"That should not be possible. The thousands in the stands are partisan. They feel that there is a lot of rivalry between the players on the various teams and they don't care and do not want to see this hand shaking and the visiting.

"A few minutes before game time the umpires stroll out and they think it is necessary for them to visit awhile. Then the captains come up and turn in the lineup and there is more visiting. Then, after awhile, the home team goes to the field.

"People like to see a show of life. Ball players are among the best athletes in the world. There should be vim and lots of action in every movement. It would be appreciated by the fans and make the game more popular.

"Let's have rivalry from the moment the men doff their street clothes for the uniform. Let's have action, a show of hustle and bustle every moment after the game begins."

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

We shall do much in the years to come,

But what have we done today?

We shall give our gold in a princely sum,

But what did we give today?

We shall lift the heart and dry the tear,

We shall plant a hope in the place of fear,

We shall speak the words of love and cheer,

But what did we speak today?

We shall be so kind in the after while,

But what have we been today?

We shall bring each lonely life a smile,

But what have we brought today?

We shall give to truth a grander birth,

And to steadfast faith a deeper worth,

We shall feed the hungry souls of earth,

But whom have we fed today?

We shall reap such joys in the by and by,

But what have we sown today?

We shall build us mansions in the sky,

But what have we built today?

'Tis sweet in idle dreams to bask,

But here and now do we do our task?

Yes, this is the thing our souls must ask,

—What have we done today?

—Nixon Waterman.

The era of day dreams and castle building belongs to the period of youth, and before the age is reached which brings responsibility and loads us with burdens.

It is perfectly natural, in this care-free period, which comes to life but once, for the boy and girl to look with longing eyes toward the future, and in attempting to penetrate its mysteries to discover a ray of hope which prompts them to plan for a place in the great panorama which stretches out ahead.

This spirit is not only natural, but commendable, for while many of these dreams are never realized, and many castles expire with the vision, yet the fact remains that both the dream and the castle are incentives to ambition, and the hope which inspires them often develops purpose, and purpose is the keynote of success.

The reason why so many young people become drifters, is because they find themselves launched on the voyage without chart or compass, and with no harbor in view.

The problem which confronts every thoughtful boy and girl, as they approach the age of maturity, is the problem of occupation, and in every home, worthy of the name, the same question is of absorbing interest. Not simply a channel that will occupy the time, but the avenue where genius and adaptability will aid in crowning effort with success.

The colleges and universities, as well as the technical schools, are helps to the home and young people are helped in this direction, because they aid in making a choice and preparing the boy and girl for special work, in which they may excel, but the great rank and file only enjoy these advantages indirectly.

The city of Washington is the most beautiful city in the land because it was laid out by a skillful architect before a foot of land was disturbed or a building erected.

The reason why the banks of Rock river are not boulevarded from the city limits in the north to the boundary line on the south, but instead are lined with all sorts of unsightly obstructions, is because the pioneer architects found it easier to follow a cow-path than a landscape blueprint.

Two years ago the government of Australia advertised for bids for the plans of a model capitol city, and the great architects of the world competed for the liberal prize offered. The plans were submitted, and a month ago, an American boy was surprised and gratified to learn that he was the winner.

The award carries with it more than the $10,000 prize, for he has already been awarded the initial work, which means a life campaign, if he so desires.

The indirect benefits which come to the masses, from this boy's success, is found in employment in building a city, in which many young men will share, and the intelligent supervision will stimulate ambition. This is true of railroading and all the great industries, where scientific knowledge is demanded. Life is a school and knowledge is acquired through observation and absorption.

But what of the text, for this rambling dissertation is far afield from the thought which inspired Mr. Waterman to write the little poem, so full of practical suggestions.

The period of day dreams and castle-building usually comes to an abrupt close, when the sober realities of life are reached, and the thought is impressed that the game is played on the principle of "Every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost."

The scramble for existence, in which the most of us are engaged, is an absorbing scramble, and all unconsciously we are apt to lose sight of the fact that the rugged pathway may be made smoother by a little thoughtful consideration of the world about us.

It is well to be concerned about the future, and every man owes it to himself to provide for the years of dependency, both for himself and his loved ones, for time is relentless, and the barren years are just as much a part of life, as the fat ones.

The trouble with many of us is, that we go on recklessly burning the candle at both ends, until reminded by a sharp turn that we have passed the limit of endurance, and are side-tracked many years too soon.

The roadway of life is lined with people who are slipping down the slope, at rapid pace, with hopes unrealized and plans frustrated. They had hoped that the time would come when the burden would be lightened, and they had planned that, as they neared the sunset, that freedom from care would renew their youth and they would play again, as in the days of childhood, but enfeebled faculties fail to respond, and forgotten play is seldom restored.

These are the conditions which invite the chimney corner and the second life, and they cross the pathway of every wayfarer, who lives out allotted time. Many of us fail to appreciate this fact until we reach the shadows, because we refuse to be close observers, but object lessons are all about us, and we are traveling the same road. The laws of life are immutable.

There is only one philosophical way to live, and that is by the day, and by the way. Children never grace the home but once and the prattle of babyhood is a melody which becomes a memory, all too soon.

The vigorous years of young man and womanhood, are not perpetual, and there frequently comes a time, before the journey is half completed, when this fact is forcibly impressed.

The early home, as well as every other period of its existence, should be a paradise, and it may be if the father and mother vie with the children to make it so.

"Plan for the future but live for the present," is always a safe motto to adopt, and in the planning, as well as the living, it is well to remember that "No man liveth to himself."

Yesterday may be clouded with regrets. Tomorrow is not ours, but today, the drama is on. And so, as the days come and go, every day is today, crowded with opportunities.

Some one has said, and very truthfully, that "flowers are for the living, and not for the dead," and while the sentiment which prompts the lavish use of flowers in the cemetery, may not be questioned, because it is too sacred, yet the fact remains that withered blossoms might have brought comfort to withered hearts that are shriveling through neglect.

It isn't what we did yesterday, or what we plan to do tomorrow, but what we do today, that makes history, and every last one of us are historians.

We may not contribute to the volume very much that is profound, but it is ours to grace its pages with a touch of human interest and a spark of life that may bring joy and gladness to a fellow traveler.

POLITICAL EQUALITY—LEAGUE NOTES.

The week beginning September 9, marked a notable achievement in the suffrage history of New York. Hammerstein's Vaudeville House opened its winter season at this time with "Votes for Women," as the big act of the week. All the New York suffrage association took part in the performance of this great suffrage week.

Wisconsin suffrage workers are not in the least discouraged by the Ohio defeat. The remarkable activity of the country newspapers in behalf of Woman's Suffrage is a matter of great encouragement.

A Suffrage conference of the diverse nationalities of the Austrian Empire was recently held in Vienna. There were present representatives of the German Suffrage Committees of Vienna, Brun, and Troppan, also of the Polish societies of Cracow, Leopold, Yassy, Galicia, and New Sander.

In China, the new franchise laws impose educational qualifications on men and women.

In India, side by side with the growth of national ideas and aspirations, the woman question grows steadily in importance. Not only in the increasing percentage of girls attending school is the new spirit in evidence, but in every department of

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON.

Maud Muller

Maud Muller on a summer's day

Raked the meadow sweet with hay.

She helped her mother oftentimes, too,

As all good daughters used to do.

She washed the dishes, scrubbed the floor,

And did full many a household chore.

She wore no false hair and no pads

And had an appetite like dad's.

All rouge and beauty dope she scorned

And her's was beauty unadorned.

But that was in the long ago

And was old-fashioned quite you know.

Now Maud appears upon the street

And is in style from head to feet.

She wears a skirt that is so tight

She has to peel it off at night.

It fits so close that in the morn

She puts it on with her shoe horn.

She wears her shoes so tight they hurt

And she is somewhat of a flirt.

For English she cares not a dang

And is well versed in George Ade's slang.

She lolls about in lounging blouse

And cannot help around the house.

Her mother's cooking is passe,

She much prefers a swell cafe.

She pounds out ragtime by the hour

And makes the neighbors grin and sour.

She's never very slow to state

Her pa and ma are out of date.

She's got the latest dancing bug,

For Turkey Trot and Bunny Hug.

Eternally she's on the go,

But cannot cook and cannot sew.

Her relatives and friends are awed,

And murmur through their tears,

"Poor Maud."

They're very, very much afraid

She's fixing to be one old maid.

The boys all think she's pleasing,

mind,

But they don't hook up with that kind.

For, with all of her fancy stunts,

She's just an ordinary dunce.

According to Uncle Abner,

Nothing will queer a fellow quicker than nailing a nickel cigar after him.

SCRIPTURE

Psalms 139:1-10.

O Lord thou hast searched me and known me.

Thou knowest my downsitting and mine uprising, thou understandest my thought afar off.

Thou compassedst my path and my lying down, and art acquainted with all my ways.

For there is not a word in my tongue, but, O Lord, thou knowest it altogether.

Thou hast beset me behind and before, and laid thine hand upon me.

Such knowledge is too wonderful for me; it is high, I cannot attain unto it.

Whither shall I go from thy spirit? or whither shall I flee from thy presence?

If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there: if I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there.

If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea;

Even there shall thy hand lead me, and thy right hand shall hold me.

Lightning Kills a Golf Player and The Travelers of Hartford Pays $9,000

On June 12th, 1912, while Mr. Ralph Perkins Gillette, of Minneapolis, Minn., Secretary of the Minneapolis Steel & Machine Company, was on the golf links of the Interlachen Club playing golf with Dr. W. H. Card and Mr. Sam Houston, an electrical storm came up; the party were holeing out on No. 4 putting green, the storm broke and Mr. Gillette ran for cover under a tree near the green. Dr. Card and Mr. Houston and the two caddies ran after him. A bolt of lightning struck the tree, killing Mr. Gillette instantly, and rendered unconscious the other members of the party, except Mr. Houston.

Mr. Gillette carried $3,000.00 "B" form Accident policy in this Company, which had fully accumulated to $4,500.00. Under the Extension of Benefits rider given free to "B" policyholders in May, 1910, the insurance under this form of policy, including the accumulations, was doubled for death caused by a stroke of lightning. The beneficiary in this case has received a check for $9,000.00.

The above simply proves that it is the unexpected that happens. In New York last year 423 people were killed and 2,004 injured by automobiles. It does not cost any more to have your accident insurance in the then why be satisfied with a policy in a small company which is in the experimental stage?

The "Travelers'" policy is broad and liberal and their settlements are always satisfactory.

Suppose you were laid up today with an accident, would a weekly allowance from the insurance company paid during the entire time of your disability (no matter if you were disabled for life) be acceptable?

The "Travelers'" also writes the lowest guaranteed cost Life Insurance. No assessments to pay and values absolutely guaranteed.

NOTICES OF APPEAL WERE FILED TODAY

Papers in Three Cases Tried in Rock County Municipal Court Filed in Circuit Court.

Notices of appeal to the circuit court from the decisions of the Rock county municipal court of Janesville, three cases, were filed in the office of the clerk of the court today. In the case of Ralph H. Harvey against the Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance company of the town of Union, the plaintiff seeks a reversal of the decision of the court, which was against him. The action involves a dispute over insurance on a heater owned by the plaintiff. Through his attorney, A. M. Fisher, Miles F. Bixler of Cleveland, doing business as the Continental company, has appealed from the court's decision in his suit against B. J. Roessling, et al., Roessling Bros., which was brought to recover the amount alleged to be due on a contract. In the municipal court the case was decided against the plaintiff on the grounds that he had not carried out the contract. Frank M. Farmer seeks to have reversed the decision of the municipal court in his replevin action to recover a milk wagon alleged unlawfully held by John Lindstrom.

RAINY DAYS MAKING BUSINESS FOR COURT

Men Not Able to Work Get Into Trouble—Five Charged With Drunkenness in Court Today.

Prolonged rainy weather has had its effect on the business of the municipal court. Men unable to work are tempted to spend too much time around the saloons and those who over-indulge find their way to the police station and the judge's desk. Five men were arraigned on charges of intoxication and not one of them was able to pay a fine. Four entered pleas of guilty. They were W. Mooney, a farmer from near Milton; T. O'Brien, a workman from Lake Geneva; B. Avis and August Dolke. Mooney, O'Brien and Avis got six days each in default of a fine of three dollars and costs, and August Dolke, who is an old offender got eight days. Hanson pleaded not guilty and his trial was set for this afternoon. Avis and Hanson were brought to the station in the patrol wagon in response to a telephone call from South Main street. Hanson claims he was merely assisting his friend to keep his feet.

CALLS STATE FAIR A COLOSSAL FAILURE

Oshkosh Woman, for 11 Years Connected With Wisconsin Exhibition, Gives Opinion.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Oshkosh, Sept. 21.—Mrs. Norah Perkins Jeanson of this city, founder of the state fair hospital and the day nursery department, and for eleven years connected with the fair, in an interview today stated that the fair has developed into a colossal failure. It was so much of a failure in her judgment that the question of abolishing it entirely is now before the people of the state. Instead of granting the necessary $5,000 which President Dewey said he would ask the legislature, Mrs. Jeanson said that politics are to blame for the mismanagement of the fair. The board at present is composed of one member from each congressional district and two from the state at large, all named by the governor and each one of them represents a payment of a political debt.

BOARD FENCE NEAR BRIDGE TEMPORARY

Structure at West Approach to Fourth Avenue Bridge Will be Replaced by Cement Wall.

The board fence and wooden retaining wall just built at the west approach of the Fourth Avenue bridge, and which have been criticised as unsightly, are but temporary structures according to city officers questioned thereto. It is the intention of the council to replace them in the spring with a wall of cement blocks to be supported on the piles driven into the mill-race. The concrete retaining wall would have been extended farther back but for the fact that at the time the plans for the bridge were drawn the Janesville Electric Company's bridge over the raceway cut in to the approach close to the city bridge, and the contract for construction was let before it was known that the Electric Company would move its bridge nearer North River Street.

CIVIL ACTIONS HEARD BY JUSTICE TALLMAN TODAY

Justice Acted in Two Cases in His Own Court And Took Others in Justice Lange's Court.

In the action brought by Miss Genevieve Ryan against the C. M. & St. Paul Railway, adjournment was taken for two weeks, and it is thought an adjustment out of court will be made. The plaintiff claims damages for alleged injuries to goods carried on one of the company's trains. Pursuit of General Price During Missouri Campaign

Campaigning in the South in 1861, in pursuit of the Rebel General Price and his command of cavalry are described in a letter published in the October 15, 1864, issue of the Gazette, in a letter written to the Gazette by the late Col. W. B. Britton of this city, who returned from the war in command of the Eighth Wisconsin Regiment. In his letter from Cape Girardeau, Missouri, on October 7, where the troops had made a halt to secure supplies, Col. Britton told of eighteen days of forced marching through the swamps and the wilderness regions of Arkansas, with the troops on shortened rations and many of them without sufficient clothing to keep them warm. Some of the privations they had to undergo are graphically described in the letter, which is printed below:

Cape Girardeau, Mo., Oct. 7.—Editors Gazette.—The 1st Division 16th Army Corps arrived safe at Cape Girardeau on the afternoon of October 5. The command under Major General Joseph A. Mower, left Brownsville, Arkansas, September 14, with 1000 men, marching northward, striking the White River and crossing it at Jacksonport and Batesville, at which point the army forded the river. We then marched in a northerly direction striking the Black River near Borohattan, fording it, we marched north to Pocahontas—keeping east of Black river until we neared the Missouri line—crossed the west side of the river and marched north for two days; re-crossed the Black river and headed for Greenville. At Greenville we forded the St. Francis river, and from this point we intended to march for Ironport or Pilot Knob, learning that the enemy had destroyed the Iron Mountain railroad.

We at this time being on quarter rations of bread and without meat the army, to a great extent, was living on parched corn and pumpkins. The General ordered the column to move to Cape Girardeau—that being the nearest place to supply the command. The most of the country between Lee, Ark., Arkansas and Greenville, Mo., was a perfect wilderness. We marched for days without seeing the habitation of man. The animals suffered terribly in crossing the swamps in Arkansas and a great many were left by the roadside to die. Quite a number of men died on the march from fatigue and exposure, and were buried beside the road. Three men from the 8th fell out and have not been heard from. The army was a sorry sight when it reached here. Many of the men were half naked and hundreds without shoes. The nights have been very cold, and not one man in fifty in the regiment had a blanket to start with, having left everything at Memphis when we started up White river expecting to be back in a few days. We arrived at Duval's Bluff, Arkansas, by steamer from Memphis, September 7th and marched to Brownsville, 30 miles, on the 9th. At this point we were loaded the ammunition and supply train for the expedition. We marched from Brownsville to this place in 18 days, a distance of 324 miles, without resting one day and often marching nights. The last two days we marched 45 miles on two crackers, and four hours sleep. We averaged 18 miles per day for 18 consecutive days.

We were received here with a salute from the fortifications the welcome smiles of the Missouri boatmen, waving of flags, etc. This portion of Missouri is undoubtedly loyal to a man. We will leave here today or tomorrow for St. Louis to join Gen. Smith. The 14th and 33d Wisconsin regiments came through with the division.

The troops of this command have received no pay for nearly six months and have not received a full ration for 70 days; have marched for ten successive Sundays; and things look very much like marching again for as many more, if old Price don't get out of Missouri. The last paper we received was dated Sept. 16th, until to day we got one of Oct. 3rd. So you see we have been well posted for the last three weeks. The fleet is in sight coming down from St. Louis and we will embark today. I suppose old tosey will be glad to see his friends.

I suppose you are as well posted in regard to Price's movements as we are. Our destination is now in southwest Missouri, in pursuit of Price, but there is not much use in chasing cavalry with infantry. We know by experience; but old Joe thinks we can travel as fast as cavalry, so we must go. Respectfully, &c., W. B. BRITTON.

OPPOSING PARTIES ARE DODGING ISSUE SAYS GOV. WILSON

Abandon High Cost of Living Proposition, He Says, When They See Inconsistency With High Tariff Stand.

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 21.—Governor Wilson's speech here last night in greater part, was devoted to high prices, and their cause. He said the leaders of the Republican and Progressive parties were abandoning this issue which is the central one of the campaign. An analysis of "big business" as assisted by the protective tariff was made by the speaker, who said in part:

"The leaders of the Republican party and the leaders of the three party have astonished the whole country by practically abandoning any serious attempt to meet the main issues of the campaign. The leaders of the third party, in particular interest us anew every day by seeking new issues and shifting the ground of debate. At the outset they declared that the real issue of the present contest was the high cost of living, but they have laid less and less emphasis upon that, because they have seen that they cannot seriously attack that question without attacking the questions of the tariff and of the trusts in a very different way from that in which they are actually approaching them."

"Both the Republican party and the third party subscribed explicitly and ardently to the principle of protection. They admit that there are defects in practice, that some duties are too high, that some exemptions have resulted from some schedules of the tariff, but while they are ready to tinker, they are not ready to alter in any essential particular the system by which special advantages and privileges in industry have been built up in this country. They stand for the system, and in their embarrassment declare that the tariff is not the cause of high prices, at any rate not the chief cause."

"The net result is that both these parties have to all intents and purposes abandoned the central issues of the campaign. The Democrats alone are bold enough and far-sighted enough to see that they must tackle frankly and directly this question. Upon what principle shall tariff duties be laid, and by what means shall monopoly be prevented?"

"They understand the interests of the country quite as well as the gentlemen who have played providence to those interests for their own benefit understand them, but they shall from another point of view, and they suspect this human providence and distrust it."

"They see as clearly as anyone else sees that business must in our day be done upon a great scale, but they know that there is a size which is natural and a size which is unnatural in business. The size which is unnatural is built up upon certain kinds of agreements, certain kinds of practices, certain understandings with regard to control which are seldom economical and whose object is not efficiency. The right and wholesome kind of size comes from natural growth, from the development of a business managed with brains, with the closest study of efficiency and economy."

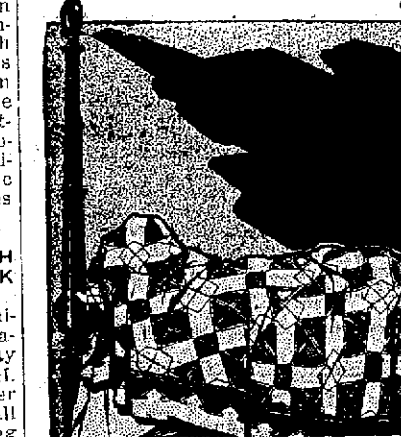

"Monopoly is always in the long run weak and inefficient, and the leaders of the Democratic party know perfectly well that they are serving the business interests of the country much better, much more intelligently, than the leaders of either of the other parties, because they mean so to regulate competition and free the conditions of business in this country as to substitute the efficient for the merely powerful."

"For, after all, the attitude of government towards labor lies at the heart of almost everything that concerns us as a nation. A nation may be said to consist of those who do its daily labor, and America has always boasted that she was the home of free labor, that all were welcome to come to her shores and partake of her unbounded opportunities. Shall we substitute for this dream and ambition of ours a regime under which great "regulated" monopolies shall be forever the chief patrons of labor? Shall we not, on the contrary, assist to set our laboring men free by placing them in a field of varied enterprise, controlled by no man, by no set of men, by no government, where they can look about for opportunity and find it, where they can act as they please, within the limits of right and justice, in their own interest, where an economic democracy will make them feel that they have a vital part in everything that affects the enterprise and the hope of the success of the nation?"

"For one, shall not abandon this hope. I, for one, am confident that prosperity does not depend upon monopoly. I, for one, believe that with just a little intelligence, just a little courage, just enough indifference to special interests, just a little inspiration of hope, we can restore American life to the conditions of which we were once so proud, and obtain for ourselves again a government which can serve us all without fear or favor, and make itself an instrument by which our life as a nation may be eased and ennobled."

Thinking perhaps that a few incidents that happened at different times while I was in the business might be interesting to the reader I will give you a few that actually happened.

At Gloversville, N. Y., while loading the train in the evening one of the big animal cages, which in one end held three lions and the other two leopards was tipped over while lifting it up onto the cars. The top of the cage broke loose and the entire five animals escaped. There were hundreds of people watching the loading of the train and they all scattered in different directions, and in a minute there was nobody to be seen but the workmen with the show. But the animals seemed to be frightened fully as bad as the people and were only looking for some place to crawl into. The entire five huddled together under the sleeper one of which I was occupying and fast asleep.

The workmen soon gathered ties and piled them up around the car and then got long ropes and made loops on the ends and one at a time, as fast as they could get them, the animals were dragged from beneath the car and put back into another cage. This work continued until the next morning before they got the last one. I knew nothing of what happened until I got up at 6 o'clock in the morning and saw that we were still in the same town. No one was hurt and no damage done except to the big cage. We had an 85 mile run out of there and it was well high noon before we reached the next town.

Late in the season the same year we showed in Akron, Ohio. After the parade had gone back to the show grounds, Mr. Forepaugh's coachman who drove up to the side of the ticket wagon and waited for him. In a few minutes he came to the ticket wagon and told me that he was going to have company for dinner and that he had made arrangements for four and wanted me to be one of them. He said, "I will drive down town now and get my other two guests and we will drive here to the ticket wagon."

About noon he arrived and with him were two ladies about 60 years of age who had formerly lived in Philadelphia. One of these ladies' given name was Elizabeth and after we had sat down to dinner Mr. Forepaugh said, "Dave Lib and I used to be pretty sweet on each other when I was working in the butcher shop." "Cut," he said, "about the time we were 14 or 15 years of age, her father, who was in the iron moulding business, came west to Akron, Ohio, and although we wrote occasionally I never saw Lib again until I came through here with the show."

I said to her, "You are probably one customer at least that got good weight at this particular butcher shop."

"Well," she said, "I don't know as to that. You know Adam and I weren't thinking so much about good weights at that time."

These two women were the only two left of the family but the father had prospered in business and left them well fixed with a fine home and good business property which brought them good rentals. Adam Forepaugh always had a soft spot in his heart for these girls, as he called them, and they were always his guests when he showed in Akron, and this day was one of the few that he missed being at the front door or in the ticket wagon, counting up the day's receipts. I want to tell you something about a man who once made his home in Janesville for many years and in his line of work he was the highest class man that I ever knew. His name was Spencer Alexander, better known here as elsewhere by the name of Delevan. He was what was known in the show business as the boss hostler. He hired and discharged all his own drivers and in the winter when they were writing for engagements the minute he would see the man's name signed he would either throw it in the waste basket and say, "He's no good" or he would say, "There is a high class man. Send for him to come on."

He was the finest buyer and seller that I ever knew and last of all although not a graduate he was a veterinary surgeon. And taking all of these qualities they meant a great deal in the business. A year ago last fall which is just the year before he died the Ringlings sent him to Europe. They sent an interpreter with him, supplied him with plenty of money and a letter of credit that read like this: "We will honor any draft or check drawn on us for any amount by our representative Spencer Alexander." This letter was in a Morocco case with a print of the five Ringlings at the head.

To give you an idea of how high class this man was he searched Europe all over, spent several thousand dollars of their money looking for anything that would be a feature in this country to draw the people to the show, but he could not find anything that looked good to him, so after more than three months of travel and spending thousands of dollars he returned home empty handed and said to the Ringling Bros. "We have better trained animals of all kinds in this country and better features for the two great shows than there can be found anywhere in Europe."

A little later just the day before the show was to close Delevan was taken sick and died very suddenly, only living a few hours. And this ended the career of the greatest man in his line of work that I ever knew. A few weeks ago when I visited the show in Rockford Al Ringling said to me, "I don't expect the show will look natural to you with Delevan gone and it don't seem to us, for Delevan had grown to be one of the standbys here and his place will be hard to fill."

Many years ago in Germantown, Philadelphia, which was the winter quarters for the Forepaugh show, there was born a baby lion and in later years it grew to one of the largest in captivity. Both in winter quarters and on the road this lion had been handled by all the different animal men and was one of the kindest and easiest managed of any that they had ever had. They named him Germantown after the name of the winter quarters.

One day in the menagerie while the parade was out—for there were always a few cages of the animals left in the menagerie that did not go out in the parade—while one of the animal men opened his cage door to clean out the cage old Germantown in a second jumped over his head and was loose, walking around in the menagerie. He started to walk out of the tent at the front door, but instead of going out followed the laps around and finally walked into the menagerie again. Near the front door he had walked within two feet of Adam Forepaugh who was sitting in a big easy chair reading a newspaper. Old Germantown as he was called, strolled around in the menagerie for a few minutes and a keeper brought a big box about four feet square and set it down in front of him and he walked into it and laid down. The animal men quickly put a board across the side and raised it up to the door of the cage and the lion walked into his old quarters again without doing any damage. Jack Forepaugh who was boss animal man and a brother of Adam told me years afterward that Adam died without ever knowing that old Germantown ever escaped from his cage.

Escape the Torture of a Weak Stomach

Every Stomach Sufferer Should Know Of Chiropractic

There is not a person with a stomach disorder but suffers untold agony. There is not one but that would give much to get well—you know that

Facts Are Startling Sometimes—But This Is One You Must Accept:

This, then, is the fact—your stomach is not to blame—YOUR SPINE IS OUT OF LINE. The vertebrae or spinal bones between which passes the nerve to the stomach has tilted and pinches that nerve (see illustration) at the point where it emerges through that spinal bone, resulting in a shutting off of the life current from the spinal cord to the stomach to such a degree that the stomach is unable to perform its natural function. Release the pinched nerve, Nature does the rest. Simple, but sure.

Notice the illustration, you can see the philosophy of the statement. Can you understand why people who think and reason for themselves seek the only known natural method of permanent relief—CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTMENTS. Every day I am convincing people by actual demonstration that disease exists only where the spine is imperfect. Rheumatism sufferers, kidney sufferers, bowel sufferers, lung sufferers, those who are weak and ill in any manner have at their very door a golden health opportunity. Why procrastinate? Why put off another day? Begin tomorrow.

Paris controls the financial situation being the only nation in a position to discount in volume foreign bills. During the past sixty days the United States has been a steady borrower abroad and at the present time, European bankers are in a position to dictate terms should the $50,000,000 worth of bills sold some sixty days ago in Paris for October maturity, require renewal. Combining the outlook abroad with the situation at home, so as to get a true perspective, the outlook is for high rates for some time to come. This was reflected in the further advance this week for both call and time money. A broad demand now exists for time money over the year and such loans are going at 5 1/2% and better. Commercial paper is now on a firm 6% basis.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

London, Sept. 21.—Jem Driscoll,

the British featherweight champion, sailed for New York today to begin another fight campaign in America. He hopes to secure a match with Champion Johnny Kilbane, but is somewhat doubtful whether the Cleveland boy will reduce in weight to 126 pounds. In the meantime Driscoll will take on "Knockout" Brown, Young Jack O'Brien and several others with whom agreements have already been signed.

Gasoline and Electric Motor

Think what this new motor means. It combines two widely used and thoroughly known power principles; one, in the perfected Cross Country gasoline engine; the other, in the commonly used electric motor generator.

Now you don't have to get out of your car to start or to light the lamps.

Press the button—you start.

Press another—you light the lamps.

This gasoline-electric motor consists of a single unit, combining a 38-horse power, four-cylinder gasoline engine with an electric motor generator.

From the instant you press the starting button this electric motor generator is creating and storing electric energy for future use.

The usual cast iron fly wheel of an ordinary engine is left off.

Noiseless and Simple

The parts forming the electric motor generator take the place of the fly wheel.

It saves weight, bearings, chains, gears, complicated wiring, and operates as silently as any electric motor.

The only wearing parts, other than those of all gasoline engines, are the motor generator brushes which are six times the necessary size—ample for many times the life of the car.

Except to put water in the batteries it requires no attention.

Ten Inch Upholstery

The Cross Country in appearance has no equal.

In comfort we thought we had reached the limit—but now we have added ten-inch upholstery.

It's so flexible you can travel on high gear no faster than a man usually walks, or fifty miles an hour.

10,000 Mile Guarantee

Of its reliability there can be no question, vouched for by our ten thousand mile guarantee.

Four Big Features

Appearance that makes you proud of your purchase.

Comfort rare and pleasing.

A gasoline and electric motor in advance of the day.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

THE GUILTY PARTY.

ONE hears a great deal of protest from time to time against the owners of houses and apartments and the hostesses of boarding and lodging houses who bar children.

Now it surely must be pretty trying to find one's self shut out of a home which one is perfectly willing to pay for, simply because he has dared to bump upon the race alive. But I wonder if the landlords and hostesses deserve all our blame. It seems to me that the ill-bred children and the careless parents who bring down odium on all children deserve at least half the blame. Surely he who abuses a privilege is just as much at fault when the privilege is withdrawn, as he who withdraws it.

A beautiful apartment house was recently put up in our town. Families with children were not excluded and two moved in. One family had three children; they were well brought up and did not cause any trouble. The other family had but one child, a little girl about six years old who had been as thoroughly spoiled as a fond and foolish mother could spoil her.

This child was an inveterate tease and one of her most pleasing tricks was to get out on the lawn in front of the house and then argue at the top of her lungs with her mother at the third floor window.

Diatribes like this were frequently howled into the ears of the other tenants.

"What are you doing down there? I told you to stay in the house."

"I want to go down to Ruth's."

"I told you that you couldn't. Come right up here."

"I don't want to. Can't I go down to Ruth's for just a little while?"

"No, Margery. Come right upstairs. I'll tell your father if you don't."

"Can I have some candy if I come up?"

"Perhaps so. You come in and I'll see."

I have cut this dialogue rather short on account of limited space, but some of the tenants assured me that Margery and her mother were troubled by no limits, and that such dialogues frequently lasted fifteen minutes at a time, interrupting naps, rendering concentration on work or play totally impossible, and generally making things miserable.

The result of this and other disgusting habits of the youngster, quite too numerous to mention, was that two tenants gave notice and the landlord finally had to ask the offenders to leave. The rule has now been made that no families with children will be accepted in that apartment house.

"Isn't that I don't like children. I love them," said the hostess of a boarding house in reference to her refusal to take a family with two children. "It's just that I can't run the risk of getting ill-bred children who will drive away the rest of my guests."

HOUSEHOLD TALKS

by Henrietta D. Grauel

There are certain signs that show the experienced judge whether these meats are in prime condition or whether they are from inferior animals.

The most delicious lamb is that which is slaughtered before old enough to feed on grass, though the grass fed lambs are the fattest.

The quality of a forequarter of lamb is guaranteed by the ruddiness or the blueness of the jugular vein; if the bright, healthy color is faded the animal has been long killed.

A forequarter of lamb consists of shoulder, neck, breast, the hindquarters is the loin and leg. Besides these are the head and pluck, the fry, sweetbreads, skirts and liver.

The forequarter is the prime cut and will require about two hours baking. In serving remove the shoulder from the ribs, put between them a lump of butter and sprinkle with pepper and salt. Orange or lemon juice may be added to the melted butter. Lamb should be thoroughly done without being dried and should be cooked until the dripping gravy is white. This rule is applicable to all young white meats; the red juice should never be visible.

Spinach, asparagus, French or Haricots beans and peas are all served with lamb. Soubise sauce, stewed cucumbers and mint sauce are also accompaniments of lamb.

WOMAN'S MOST SUCCESSFUL MEDICINE

Known All Over The World—Known Only For The Good It Has Done.

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or received so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In nearly every community you will find women who have been restored to health by this famous medicine. Almost every woman you meet knows of the great good it has been doing among suffering women for the past 30 years.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, many of whom state that it has saved them from surgical operations.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made from roots and herbs, and is perfectly harmless.

The reason why it is so successful is because it contains ingredients which act directly upon the female organism, restoring it to healthy and normal activity.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

The KITCHEN CABINET

WHEN we have nothing else that we can do for the good of mankind, and are so poor that we have nothing else that we can give, we can always and everywhere give kindness. Kindly sympathy in another's interests, kindly judgment of his efforts, honest pity for his mistakes and failures, sincere pleasure in his successes—these are always in our power. If we are not too self-centered to bestow them, and these will do so much to all the days with sunshine and the future with radiant hope.

APPLE DISHES.

There is no sauce quite like the green apple sauce, which is prepared as soon as the apples are large enough to cook. The skins are tender, and so we leave them unpeeled, and sweeten them just before taking off. Many like to put the sauce through a sieve, before serving.

Fried Apples.—When the Duchess apple is about half grown they begin to be good for frying. Core them without peeling, cut in half inch slices and fry in hot fat; sprinkle generously with sugar and add a shake of salt and paprika. Turn carefully with the pancake turner to keep them in shape.

Fried Apples and Onions.—This is a most appetizing dish for those who enjoy onions. Cut up the apples as for stewing. Slice a few onions, a third as many as apples, or just one for flavor. Fry the onion in the hot fat, add the apples, removing the onion before it gets too brown, or adding some water to cook them all together. Season with salt, and if the apples are sour, a generous measure of sugar. Serve as a garnish for pork chops or as an extra vegetable.

Apple pie is too well known, except to mention. There is none excels it. When well made and served with cream it is a popular pie. Apple pie is a la mode is simply apple pie served with a spoonful of ice cream on top.

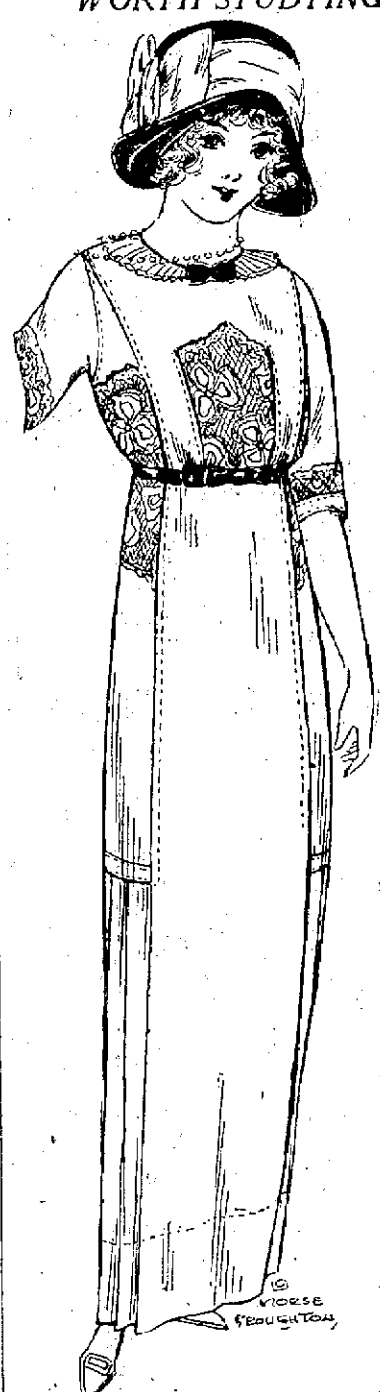

A very good filling for a cake, and one which keeps its flavor, is the following: Grate a good-sized apple, add it to the well-beaten white of an egg and a cup of powdered sugar. Beat until stiff. This makes a pretty dessert served with a thin custard poured around it.

The ways of serving apple in dishes is legion. As salad, a combination of diced apple, celery, nuts and salad dressing makes a dish most welcome and refreshing.

Apple sauce cake is one in which a cup of sifted apple sauce takes the place of eggs. A most satisfactory cake to keep.

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS

days, the husband reports the case to the police, and by-and-by the errand wife is usually found in some other town or with some old friend, either unrepentant or utilizing that same old masculine excuse—"couldn't remember a thing," etc.

And when a girl thinks her parents are not treating her with due consideration, or if her little fool brain gets a romantic kink in it, she thinks it's just the thing to disappear and be hunted for, actually reveling in the excitement, and not realizing that the appearing girls have been found "visiting friends," or "just married," than have been found victims of white-slavery, although until they are located their relatives undergo all the fear of the terrible possibility.

A man disappears, usually, when he wants to shirk responsibilities. He isn't anxious to be found until he gets ready to return.

But a woman, when her temper, or romantic notions, or her "nerves" or maybe just plain "smartness" have driven her away from home, dearly loves the notoriety of being hunted for, and looks forward to being discovered and returned to the bosom of her family. As a young woman said, not long ago, who was discovered "just visiting a friend," anxiety for her family, "Why, isn't it perfectly lovely to have all that fuss made over one."

There are a number of cases, it is true, where a woman is literally driven away from her home, and where a girl would rather endure anything than continue in her unhappy environment, but unless the circumstances are extreme, in almost every instance the runaway finds that after all home is better than the cruel outside world, which has little, if any, use for an unsheltered woman.

Heart and Home Problems

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson—I am 18 years old and never kept steady company with any fellow. I had a chance to go with several fellows, but my girl friends told me I would be crazy to go with them. So I did not. And now she goes out with one of them. What do you say about that?

HELEN.

I should say that your friend is "catty" and that it isn't always a good idea to take a girl friend's advice about boys. Ask your mother or father or brother for advice where a man or boys are concerned.

However, you are not badly off for never having kept company with any boys, yet. You are only beginning to be old enough to do that, and I hope you are going to be sensible and not allow any love-making unless you know you are going to marry the man who does it.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—(1) In a perfectly formed foot, should the second toe be longer than the big toe? (2) What is considered the correct form of hemming tablecloths and napkins?

HAPPY IDIOT OF BAGDAD.

(1) The second toe is longer. (2) At present the hems are rather narrow with fine small hemstitching.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—My husband is very kind to me and treats me with respect, but when we go out together he does not seem to care for me. He is always looking around to attract someone that looks sporty. I dress as neatly and stylishly as I can, and always try to be fresh and sweet and pleasing when he comes home. It pains me to see him always looking for other women and I cannot have any pleasure when out with him. I have spoken to him kindly about it, but he denies it. Would it be a good idea not to go out with him any more, to prevent further trouble? Am I to blame for it?

M. L. K.

Go out with him every chance you can get and admire all the good looking men you see. Also when he admires a woman, agree with him. But I think you are a trifle too sensitive, my dear. Every man admires good looking women, without loving them, and as long as you know your husband is fond of you and is kind and considerate of you, just overlook any little diversion he may take in noticing other women, and have a good time when you are out together.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—Have collected a number of clam shells of extra large size and would like to use them for sugar and flour scoops. Can you tell me any strong solution that will take the black off the back of the shell to make it more sanitary?

B. J.

Muriatic acid might take it off. It is a strong corrosive. But be very careful not to get any on your hand or the inside of the shell. Use a brush to apply it. You can boil the shells in soda water, then polish the

SNAPSHOTS BY BARBARA BOYD

Overheard at the Office

"HAVE you got a Bible?" asked the Sporting Editor of the Girl Reporter.

"A Bible! What's the matter? Got acute indigestion or are you going up in an aeroplane?"

"Neither. But I want a mascot when I go near the firing line."

"The firing line! What are you talking about? Has a wire come in that a war's on?"

"Nope. But the boss is in one of his maddest, teariest rages. He's sitting up front positively purple. And everybody who goes near him gets fired. There's been thirteen fired already. I've been going around all the morning with my fingers crossed. But I'd like a small Bible to carry in my vest pocket, as well. It's Friday, the 13th, too," he concluded gloomily.

"Guess I'll go softly," said the Girl Reporter. "Wish I could let myself down out of the window by a rope, so I needn't go past him. But isn't that just like him? Probably he's made a mess of something, and so he takes it out on us."

The Sporting Editor agreed. "That's the truth. But it doesn't make it any easier for us."

"He makes me think of a man I saw once who was milking. As he got up he upset the bucket of milk. He ought to have kicked himself, but he kicked the cow."

"He's sore about the 'Hustler's' scoop on that bank affair yesterday."

"It wasn't the fault of a soul on the paper but himself," said the Girl Reporter. "He wasn't on the job, that was all. But instead of looking the fact straight in the face and making up his mind not to fall down that way again, he blusters around and discharges a whole lot who had nothing to do with it."

"There are lots like him," went on the Girl Reporter sagely. "I know a man who, when he makes mistakes and gets things all balled up at the office, goes home and takes it out on his wife and children. Nothing is fit to eat for dinner. If the children say two words they're liable to be whipped and sent to bed. A man like that has no right to be at the head of a business. And if things were run co-operatively, or by a board of employees or something like that, he wouldn't be there long to inflict the result of his own mistakes on others."

"That's so," agreed the Sporting Editor, who wasn't listening to what she was saying. "But I wish you had a Bible. I can't keep my fingers crossed all day. I've got to work. And I don't want to get fired now. I've just bought an automobile."

"When I go out to lunch I'll buy you a Bible," soothed the Girl Reporter. "Maybe I can get one second hand."

"How soon are you going to lunch?"

"If you'll go and engage the boss in conversation I'll slide out now."

"Not on your life. I'm not going near him till I get that Bible. And you'd better get yourself one of those good-luck charms. I tell you this office needs some good life lines, right now."

"The boss wants to see you," announced a small boy.

"Good night," said the Sporting Editor. And he went up the room with the fingers of both hands tightly crossed.

BLOTCHES ON FACE DRY AND SCALY

Eczema Began in Hair. Spread to Face. Came on Hand and All Over Fingers. Itching Terrible. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

205 Kanter Ave., Detroit, Mich.—“Some time last summer I was taken with eczema. It began in my hair first with red blotches then scaly, spreading to my face. The blotches were red on my face, dry and scaly, not large; on my scalp they were larger, some scabby. They came on my hands. The inside of my hands were all little lumps as though full of shot about one-sixteenth of an inch under the skin. Then they went to the outside and between and all over my fingers. It also began on the bottoms of my feet and the calves of my legs, and itchy, oh, my! I never had anything like it and hope I never will again. The itching was terrible. My hands got so I could scarcely work.

“I tried different eczema ointments but without results. I also took medicine for it but it did no good. I saw the advertisement for a sample of Cuticura Ointment and Soap and sent for one. They did me so much good I bought some more. They came as per directions and in about three weeks I was well again. Cuticura Soap and Ointment entirely cured me.” (Signed) Benj. J. GIVES AMUSEMENTS SEVERE INSPECTION

Evangelist Greene Raps Theatres, Cards and Dancing in His Address Last Night.

Declaring at the outset that men and women of today were mad over amusements, Evangelist Greene delivered a philippic against theatre-going, card-playing and dancing at the auditorium building last evening.

He grouped the three in the same class, branding them all as menaces to morals and social betterment, but he especially emphasized the dance as the greatest of the three evils.

Card-playing aside from the fact that it contributed nothing to one's moral and intellectual welfare, lead directly to the gambling hell and similar levels of society, said the speaker. He criticised especially the playing of cards in the home and said it amounted to parents encouraging the downfall of their children.

Mr. Greene branded the theatre as a "menace to society." In it he said he saw no good whatever and he declared it must necessarily appeal to the lower instincts and animal passions. It degraded one to attend the performances he said, and player-folk must necessarily be lowered and polluted in his opinion.

Not one redeeming feature could be found in the dance by Evangelist Greene, and he was emphatic in his denunciation of this prevalent form of amusement. The idea of a girl of woman held in the embrace of a man who meant nothing to her, he declared, was no good whatever and he declared it must necessarily appeal to the lower instincts and animal passions. It degraded one to attend the performances he said, and player-folk must necessarily be lowered and polluted in his opinion.

Mr. Clarke contributed to the evening's services with several songs. He has a fine voice and sings with power and expression. The meetings will be continued nightly for another week at least. The men's meeting tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock promises to be an interesting one.

Municipal Affairs Of Vital Interest

HOW BERLIN SOLVES ITS SEWAGE PROBLEM

Reduced to Fertilizer and Used to Irrigate Over 200,000 Acres of Municipal Farming Lands.

(By William George Bruce.)

Perhaps no city in the world maintains a more elaborate system of sewage disposal than does the municipality of Berlin. While the collection and disposal of its garbage is conducted by private and cooperative enterprises, its sewage system is strictly a municipal enterprise conducted upon an extended and somewhat unique basis.

In the disposal of its sewage Berlin not only aims to meet the sanitary requirements of its inhabitants but also to realize in the highest degree an economic advantage from such disposal in order to attain this end sewage is not only reduced to and utilized as fertilizer but the water which carries this sewage serves as a means of irrigation upon lands which can advantageously absorb the moisture thus supplied.

The whole system is an ingenious one and is made practical owing to the natural conditions which (apply to vast territories of land lying north and south of Berlin. It affords a splendid object lesson in wise and economic municipal housekeeping and while the system cannot be imitated by all other large cities it is at least suggestive as to the utilization of natural conditions.

The So-Called Radical System.

Before attempting to say something about the actual utilization of the sewage let me describe briefly the drainage system. This is perhaps not much different from other similar systems except that the sewage is led to twelve central points where pumping stations are provided.

In other words, the city is divided into twelve districts according to geographical and political subdivisions of nearly equal area. The sewer piping radiates out from these pumping stations connecting with 31,118 separate buildings and providing drainage for about two and one-half million people.

The powerful pumps located at these stations drive the sewage through the large mains which lead miles into the country. One of these is connected with lands to the south of Berlin, the other to the north.

The Great Rieselfelder.

The unique part of the system begins where the sewage has reached the land to be disturbed by means of standpipes into a series of trenches and ditches. These vast areas, which have thus irrigated are known as Rieselfelder. The word "Rieselfeld" means "trickle" as applied to the trickling of water, thus the lands may be designated as irrigation fields.

In the main trenches the sewage matter undergoes a sort of settling process. In time they fill up and the contents become thick and hard. These are permitted to dry and harden when they are dug out and sold as fertilizer to the farmers in the surrounding country.

The water which has been carried along with the sewage evaporates in part and is in part carried along the ditches and absorbed into the soil. After it has soaked through the soil it filters itself into drain tiles and from these is carried in a purified state into the nearby rivers and lakes. The water which comes out of the drain tile has been found to be absolutely pure.

The Irrigation Colonies.

The irrigation lands are managed from eight different points where colonies or agricultural centers have been established. These are equipped with all the buildings that accompany large estates.

One colony, known as Horbrechtsfelde Gut, is equipped with large granaries, modern cow barns, horse stables, blacksmith shops, abattoir, etc., as well as model housing for the farm hands.

There are separate houses for families and a large boarding house for the unmarried people. One of the features is a comfortable club house which is equipped with a recreation hall, a restaurant, bath rooms and other conveniences. The number of people employed varies from 100 to 200 according to the seasons of the year. The combined Rieselfelder employ as many as 800 inmates from the municipal workhouse in addition to the regular help.

Each colony raises enough hay and oats to feed the cattle, and all the vegetables and meats required by its residents. But, in addition to this a large quantity of food stuffs is supplied to the general city hospital and pure milk is furnished to the infant hospital. The surplus of hay, grain and cattle is sold in open market.

Investment and Returns.

The extent of the irrigation lands may be imagined when it is known that they cover over 210,000 acres. While they lie in two different sections they are somewhat irregular and scattered form. They originally comprised large estates which had partially fallen into neglect because of the barrenness of the soil. About one-tenth of the land is rented to small truck gardeners who sell their products to the Berliners.

The total investment in the sewage system, including the purchasing and laying of sewer stations, amounts to $24,490,563. The cost of irrigation lands, their original purchase price, irrigation and drainage improvements and the buildings and their equipment represent another investment of about $18,000,000, making the total investment over $42,000,000.

The difference between operating expenses and the gross income last year, or the net proceeds were $135,786. While this figure represents but a small interest on the total capital invested it is regarded as a distinct saving and an addition to the tax income of the city.

CITY PLAYGROUNDS REDUCE JUVENILE DELINQUENCY CASES.

William Zuerner, Chief of Probation Department in Milwaukee Testifies to Their Effects.

There were fewer juvenile arrests in districts where playgrounds were easily accessible than in other parts of the city of Milwaukee during the past summer, according to William Zuerner, chief of the probation department.

In sections where there were no playgrounds, or where they were so far from children's homes that they could not use them, the juvenile court found the majority of its young defendants.

"We are trying to find out what effect playgrounds have on the behavior of children," said Mr. Zuerner, "and from our investigation we have discovered that for a number of squares around a playground children have been kept out of mischief."

In going over the records of the department, the addresses of the majority of minor delinquents are located for the most part, in some section of the city not accessible to playgrounds.

The placing of play apparatus in the public parks, school yards and playgrounds, has had a tendency to keep the youngsters out of mischief. Mr. Zuerner declares.

During the hours when the children are permitted to use the grounds, set aside for this purpose, in different parts of the city, there are officials in charge to keep order.

Very few complaints were received. Parents were glad the city afforded a place where they could send the youngsters, feeling assured they would be well entertained and taken care of.

CLEVELAND PUBLIC MARKET HOLDS DOWN LIVING COST.

Price of Fish and Other Edibles Reduced—Dayton Market Pays City $25,000 Revenue.

Milwaukee is away behind cities of similar size in its public market development, according to William J. Johnson of Hartford, Conn., authorized to procure data for the use of the mayor and aldermen of the city who are discussing expansion of public market facilities.

"I have been in Detroit, Cleveland, Indianapolis, Toledo, Columbus, Dayton and Grand Rapids," explained Mr. Johnson, and inspected several very fine markets. Probably the best of has just completed one at a cost of $500,000. Before the city began fostering the public market idea the price of fish from the lake ranged around 19 and 20 cents a pound. Since all fishermen have opportunities to get into the market, the price has been reduced 5 cents. Other price reductions of 5 cents have been experienced.

"In Indianapolis the market master told me that the public market idea holds the price of living to the consumer down relatively about 30 per cent, compared with cities of similar sizes having no such trade emporiums. The market there has 600 stalls and is an all-year-around market, well housed."

"In Dayton I learned the market place pays the municipality a net revenue of about $25,000 a year, and in fact the revenues derived by all the fish-laying markets I found are quite large. The idea of public markets is spreading all over the country, in large and small towns also."

"In Hartford the idea is of recent development," and "there has been much agitation of the subject in the municipal administration, so much so in fact, that the mayor and a committee of the city council have just started on an extended tour of the entire country seeking what information they can, with a view to applying it in subsequent action demanded by the public which wants a large market established there—Milwaukee News."

MOTOR TRUCKS BIG AID TO CHICAGO FIREMEN

Motor fire trucks of the city fire department gave an exhibition of their efficiency on Michigan avenue Tuesday afternoon and evening that proved:

First, that a stream of water would be thrown into any of the downtown theaters in case of fire by companies equipped with motor facilities in less than two minutes.

Second, that every bit of fire apparatus in Chicago could be in action in the loop district in about twenty minutes if the fire department were entirely motorized.

Third, that motorized fire trucks are more than twice as fast as horse drawn vehicles even in short runs.

The motor police patrol, which supplied the speed for the police department in the exhibition demonstrated: First, that every policeman in the city could have been at Randolph and Desplaines on the day of the Haymarket riot in less than half an hour if the police department were motorized.

Second, that the chief's office is connected with the outlying stations by less than half an hour's running time.

WILL SELL BATHERS SOAP THROUGH SLOT MACHINES.

St. Louis is attracting the interest of other cities by its plan to supply a cake of soap, two paper towels, and a sanitary cardboard comb, all for one cent. The articles will be sold by means of slot machines operated by the city and placed in public comfort stations and in the picnic grounds in the parks. The towels, soap, and comb are wrapped in a cylindrical cardboard box, which drops into the hands of the purchaser. The boxes will be furnished at $10 a thousand and a manufacturing concern is to furnish the slot machines free. The city will really make money by this arrangement, because attendants at comfort stations will no longer be necessary—The Survey.

FINDING SMALL BUGS IN RACINE CITY WATER SUPPLY.

Once more complaint is heard about the conditions of the lake water furnished by the Racine Water company. Often small bugs and other peculiar things are found and which come through the faucets. F. A. Morey, real estate dealer, brought to the Journal News office yesterday a bug which his wife discovered in a glass of water drawn from the faucet at their home and which she was about to drink. This insect or bug has about forty legs or crawlers and four follicles. It is of dark color, one inch long and resembles a centipede.

Warner's Rust-Proof Corsets

It must be a fearful thing to be dogged around by coupon bonds and 32 per cent dividends, without being able to persuade them to release their hold. What greater affliction could there be than a mass of dogged coupons, multifarious and monotonous, which pile up faster than eager church treasurers can "recite" for them?

Yet this is precisely the fix in which Andrew Carnegie, Scotchman, finds himself. For years Andrew has been engaged in an unsuccessful effort to die poor. It is the passion of his life. He would rather die broke than do anything else he can think of offhand. For years, we say, Andrew has been tarrying pipe organs, libraries and higher education at the heads of the common people without making a dent in his income. He hasn't even started a respectable dimple in it.

Every once in a while Andrew tears off a few millions and buries them with all his force at somebody who believes that our infant industries ought not to be throttled by the pauper labor of England. When he gets up the next morning and looks at his cash on hand, he finds that his income has gotten busy during the night and choked his safety deposit box with convertible assets. It he lets a day go by without starting a few symphonies or light fiction—reports, his money will climb up faster than the contents of a corn-cob.

Andrew might as well give up. He is several laps behind now and sinking deeper and deeper in legal tender and other financial dabs. He will never know what poverty is unless he changes his system. There are thousands of bright, estimable young men who would be willing to help Andrew get rid of his small change. If he would invite them in and talk the matter over without any of the Scotch hauteur which creeps into some of his correspondence.

Aside from his money, which he can't help. Market Carnegie has no bad habits. He is as big and forceful and square as a Scotch-American is supposed to be, and you can't beat the combination.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Well, in one way you can hardly blame the Guests.

DOUBLY PROVEN.

Janesville Readers Can No Longer Doubt the Evidence.

This Janesville citizen testified long ago. Told of quick relief—of lasting benefit. The facts are now confirmed. Such testimony is complete—the evidence conclusive. It forms convincing proof of merit.

Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson, 118 Terrace St., Janesville, Wis., says: "I was a sufferer from kidney trouble for ten or twelve years. My kidneys became sluggish and their failure to do their work properly caused me to become weak and helpless. The kidney secretions were very unnatural and often my joints were sore and swollen. I had almost given up hope of getting relief when I had the good fortune to hear of Doan's Kidney Pills. I got a supply at the People's Drug Co., and they soon restored my kidneys to a normal condition. I advise other kidney sufferers to try this remedy." (Statement given in August, 1908.)

CONFIRMED PROOF.

Mrs. Johnson was interviewed on September 23, 1910, and she added to the above: "I take pleasure in again recommending Doan's Kidney Pills and advising their use in all cases of kidney trouble. I am still free from kidney complaint and my back does not bother me to any extent." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. The Chronicles of Addington Peace

"No—for us it is sufficient. It is for you to continue, Mr. Inspector. You think you will catch these men who kill him, don't you?"
"We shall try," said Peace, with a modest droop of the eyes.
"Ach—but where can there be certainty in our lives? Come now, my children, let us be going. Alexander, you have the door-key of the studio; give him to the inspector here."

So it was the door-key, thought I, of which Mr. Alexander obtained a memento behind the roller-top desk! Peace gave a polite good-bye to his companions on the step, locked up the little green door, and then started down the street at my side.
"I had no business to come poking my nose into your affairs," I said. "Anything you say I shall thoroughly deserve."

"Don't apologize," he smiled. "I was pleased to see you."
"And why?"
"You can do better things than remain a wealthy dilettante, Mr. Phillips. You are too broad in the shoulders, too clear in the head, for living in the world that is dead. Such little incidents as these—they drag you out of the shell you are building about you. That is why I was pleased to see you. I have spoken plainly—are you offended?"
"Oh, no," I said, waving my stick to a passing hansom, though I did not refer again to the topic which I foresaw was likely to become personally offensive to me.

He sat back in the corner of the cab, filling his pipe with dextrous fingers, while I watched him out of the corner of my eye. When it was well alight, he began again on a new subject.
"London's a queer place," he said, "though perhaps you have not had the time to find it out. There are foreign colonies, with their own religions and clubs and politics, working their way through life just as if they were in Odessa or Hamburg or Milan. There are refugees—Heaven knows how many, for we do not—that have fled before all the despots that succeeded and all the revolutions that failed from Siam to the Argentine. Tolstoid fanatics, dishonest presidents, anarchists, royalists, Armenians, Turks, Carlists, and the dwellers in Mesopotamia—a finer collection than even America itself can show. On the Continent—well, we should be running them in, and they would be throwing bombs. But here no one troubles them so long as they pay rent and taxes, and keep their hands out of each other's pockets or from each other's throats. They understand us, too, and stop playing at assassins and conspirators. But once in a while habit is too strong for them, and something happens."

"As it happened to Amaroff?"
"Yes—as it happened to Amaroff."
"It was a political crime?"
"Yes."
"And the reasons?"
"They have the advantage of simplicity. Amaroff was a member of the Russian secret-service, detailed to mix with and observe the Nihilist refugees. The Czar enters Paris in two days, and when the Czar travels the political police of all the capitals are kept on the run. I suppose Amaroff showed an excess of zeal that made his absence from London desirable. Anyway, he was found dead, and the Russians reasonably conclude it is the Nihilists who killed him."

"Who were those men in the studio?"
"The big fellow was Nicolai, the head of the Russian service over here. I don't know a better man in his profession nor one with fewer scruples. The other two were assistants. They came down to the Yard this morning with a request that they might search the studio for certain private papers which Amaroff had and which belonged to them. So we fixed the appointment into which you have just walked."

"And they finished their search?"
"You heard them say so."
"Exactly; but why, then, did they the place under close observation for weeks. And you know what that means, sir."

"Yes, I know what that means." "Amaroff was not a member, but used to drop in there from time to time. He was very thick with the man who runs the place, Greatman, as he calls himself. They tell me that Greatman sat as a model for some statue he was doing, back in July. It must have been a funny sort of statue, for Greatman's a weedy little Pole, and drinks like a fish."
For some time the inspector sat in silence, drawing circles on the floor with the point of the light cane he carried. The bartender dropped a glass, swore, and then, with a stare at us, retreated into a little cage he had at the back of his domain. Doubtless the presence of detectives was no incentive to trade in the bars of Maiden Square.

"This Greatman—what more do you know of him?"
"We have had nothing against him before; but all the same, it's his private room that has the sanded floor." The inspector's prophecy of the previous night came back to me with a sudden remembrance: "Amaroff was murdered in a room with a sanded floor, probably at no great distance from Leman street, seeing that they carried him there in a coster's barrow." I began to understand the morbid significance of the private room in this little foreign club.

We were drawing nearer to our game; the scent was growing stronger. Addington Peace leant a little forward, with a twist in his jaw that raised a ripple of muscles under the skin.
"Continue, if you please," he said.
"The room is at the rear of the club, and there is a back staircase to a yard behind, where costers store their barrows when not in use. It fits in with what you told us to inquire for, don't it, sir?"
"Yes."
The inspector's stick recommenced its interlacing circles on the floor; and we sat and watched, as if thereby we were disentangling his sordid story. So still were we all that the bartender poked his luminous nose from his cage in the hope that we had gone. He withdrew it with remarks on the police force which were distinctly audible, and opposed to the complimentary. Suddenly the inspector turned to me with a motion of half-apology, as if at the neglect of a guest.

"There are times, Mr. Phillips," he said, "when evidence runs in absurd contradictions. Observe the present case, in which you are so good as to interest yourself. We have it from the Russian police that Amaroff is their man, and that in their opinion—they being well qualified to judge—he was murdered by Nihilists. We now learn that he was apparently on intimate terms with Nihilists, and we have good reason to believe that he was strangled in one of their clubs. What do you gather from that?"
"They discovered his treachery, and took an excusable revenge," said I.
"A sound conclusion. And now let us suppose that Amaroff was not a police spy at all; being, in fact, a dangerous Nihilist. What then?"
"Why set yourself such a puzzle?"
"Not for amusement," he said, with his quiet smile. "And now I propose a little experiment. You must introduce us to this club, Jackson; the door-keeper will know you, and pass us in. Afterwards you will go to the back entrance in the yard you spoke of, and wait. It should be easy to conceal yourself."

"Yes, sir. Am I to stop Greatman if he comes out?"
"No. Stop nobody. We had better be going."
The square lay desolate and lonely in the bleak moonlight. We crossed it, and stopped at a house in the shadows of the farther side. At our knock a slide flew back, and in the gush of light, a hairy face examined us curiously.
"Vat is it?" he said.
The sergeant stepped forward and whispered. The man was sufficiently satisfied, for he dropped the slide at once, and the door swung back to admit us; the hairy-faced porter bowing a welcome in polite submission. The inspector led the way up the stairs, and I followed at his heels. The sergeant had disappeared.

It was a broad, low room in which we found ourselves, the rafters of the roof unhidden by the plaster of a ceiling. Round the walls on benches ranged behind tables a dozen men sat smoking and drinking. The chatter of talk faded away as we entered. In silence they stared at us, calmly, judiciously, without fear or curiosity. I could not have imagined a more composed and "resolute company." I felt that I carried myself awkwardly, as an impertinent intruder should; but the inspector sauntered across the room to a bar on the further side as calmly as if he were the oldest and most valued member in the club.

A pale-faced man with a stained and yellow beard rose from his seat behind the glasses. His eyes were fixed on Peace with a weak, pathetic expression like a dog in pain.
"Good evening, Mr. Greatman," said the inspector. "Can I have a word with you?"
"Yes, sir, if you will kindly step into my private room," he answered in excellent English, opening a hatch in the bar. "This is the way, sir, if you will follow me."

We walked after him down a short passage and stopped before the darkness of an open door. A spurt of a match and the gas jet flared upon a bare chamber, hung with a gaudy paper and furnished with half a dozen wooden chairs set round a deal table in the center. In place of a carpet, our feet grated upon a smooth sprinkling of that grey sand which may still be found in old-fashioned inns. It was here then, if the detectives were not mistaken, that this crime had found a climax, this sordid murder not thirty hours old.

"If you would like a fire, gentlemen," suggested Greatman, "I can easily fetch some coals."
"Pray do not trouble yourself," said the inspector, politely. "My name is Peace, of the Criminal Investigation Department, and I called to inquire if you can tell me anything concerning the murder of the sculptor, Amaroff."
"I know nothing."
"That is strange, seeing that he was strangled in this very room."

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Sept. 21, 1872.—Southern Wisconsin Fair, Closing Day.—The Southern Wisconsin Fair closed yesterday, the final awards of the judge being made on that day and prizes awarded. A trot for a purse of $70, best three in five, was held. Entries were made by M. Gaudy and D. Hawver. Gaudy won in three straight heats. Time: 2:50, 2:40, and 2:50. For the $200, three in five trot, entries were made by H. D. McKinney and W. W. Hamilton. Hamilton took the purse in three straight heats. Time: 2:41, 2:40 and 2:45.

At four o'clock the farmers' trot was called. For this race, open to untrained horses belonging to farmers, purses of $20, $10 and $5 were offered. Entries were made by Joseph Spaulding, James Howard, F. B. Fales, G. B. Doubleday, Wm. Wright, Weed & Co., N. Hazelton, Wm. Burgess, Wm. Taylor, Wm. Spaulding, G. A. Proctor and S. B. Moss. The best three in each lot were taken for the final heat. In this heat Joseph Spaulding, F. B. Fales, Wm. Taylor and G. B. Doubleday were taken. Fales took first money, Proctor the second and Spaulding the third.

A foot race of one hundred yards, between two volunteers, followed the farmers' trot and ended the exercises.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY You are fortunate. If in employ your efforts will be appreciated and rewarded. It is better for you to remain where you are and neither travel or make great changes in your affairs. Those born today will be fortunate and success will attend their efforts. They will have talents which can be trained for a literary or dramatic career and will win by their own ability.

UNCLE WALT

The Poet Philosopher
Copyright, 1909, by George Manly Adams
BY WALT MASON

Oh, Charles Adolphus, go your way, and paint the town from day to day, until you've had your fill; but every foolish act, gadzooks, is charged against you in the books, and you must pay the bill. One thing is sure as death or tax, which is that retribution whacks each erring mortal; long years may pass, already yet, before you're called to pay the debt, but some time you must pay. Go, rake in wealth with greedy paws, and violate all moral laws, and cheat and swindle still; but some day—maybe when you're old—

PAYMENT and love seems better far than gold—you'll have to pay the bill. Oh, loofer, loaf the hours away, and waste the golden summer day, refuse to toil or till! When winter comes and workers rest in cozy homes, of ease possessed, you'll have to pay the bills! Oh maidens, radiant and fair, who use peroxide on your hair, and kalsomine your cheeks; who twist your systems all away until the gods look down and sigh, "Oh, pipe the dizzy reeks!" With all your paint and turpentine, and shoes that crush your aching toes, you're surely out to kill; but when the glow of youth is past, and age comes creeping on at last, you'll have to pay the bill. Each foolish action that we do, each wicked course that we pursue, we settle for some day; the captain's office open stands, where we must face this world's demands, and some time we must pay.

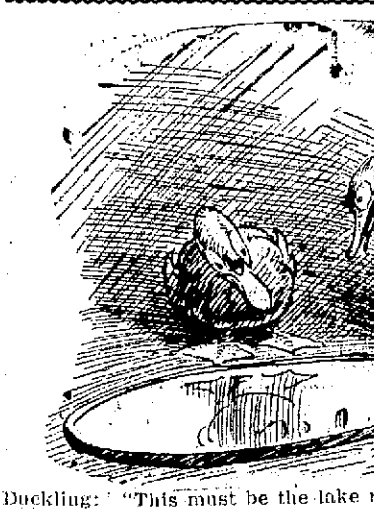

IF TOMORROW IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

The following year will be a busy one for you and will bring you good fortune. If in employ good judgment as to how and when to act will win you recognition.

Those born Sunday, September 22, will have well balanced minds and should manage their own affairs, rather than remain long in the employ of others. They will make many valuable friends.

Never! No, Never!
A woman never puts off till tomorrow what she can say today.—Life.

Duckling: "This must be the lake mother talks so much about!"

MAN FOOTS THE BILL.

Mrs. Jones—That paper has an article on the question which has the better time, man or woman.
Jones—Woman does, because she doesn't have to pay for it.

When to Gather Apples. Even though he may not be well versed in fructiculture the average schoolboy knows full well that the best time to gather apples is when the dog is chained up.—The Tatler.

Meritol Pile Remedy, a new preparation, a world better. Reliable Drug Co., Sole Agents.

James J. Hill Says:

"BUY LAND; BUY IT ANYWHERE, AND YOU WILL PROFIT." YOU can now take advantage of the low price of property in the best towns in the Northwest reached by the new Transcontinental railway—the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound—and buy lots in 5 different towns for a remarkably low price—and pay for them in very small monthly payments.
